COURAGE.

Because I hold it sinful to despond,
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears, but look beyond
Its tumult and its strife;

Because I lift my head above the mist,
Where the sun shines and the broad breezes blow;
By every ray and every rain-drop kissed,
That God's love doth bestow;

Think you I find no bitterness at all,
No burden to be borne, like Christian's pack?
Think you there are no ready tears to fall
Because I keep them back?

Why should I hug life's ills with cold reserve,
To curse myself and all who love me? Nay!
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives me every day.

And in each one of these rebellious tears,
Kept bravely back, he makes a rainbow shine,
Grateful I take his slightest gift, no fears,
Nor any doubts, are mine.

Dark skies must clear; and when the clouds are past,
One golden day redeems a weary year.
Patient I listen, sure that sweet at last
Will sound His voice of cheer.

Then vex me not with chiding. Let me be,
I must be glad and grateful to the end.
I grudge you not your cold and darkness—me
The powers of light befriend.

[Atlantic Monthly.

KISSED BY MISTAKE.

A quiet, uneventful life was mine until I left the shelter of my father's roof in Graham, and accepted the desk of book-keeper in the wholesale clothing establishment of Shears & Prescott, in the busy little city of Weston.

Out there, one fine afternoon in October, just in the midst of the Indian summer, I invited Lillie Prescott, with whom I was very nearly in love, to walk in the park with me.

Her little hand in its delicate primrose-colored glove rested on my arm, her black eyes were lifted to my face. I felt particularly tender and confidential, and at peace with all the world. We were speaking of the gorgeousness of the distant hills, clothed, as they were, in their mantle of crimson foliage, when I was brought to a stop by hearing my name pronounced in a tone neither sweet or agreeable:

"Mr. Smith, I'll jest trouble you for a minit."

I looked up. A woman of fifty, or thereabout, effectually blocked the sidewalk before us; indeed her proportions were colossal. If ever I have seen the personification of indignation, I saw it in her countenance.

"Madame?" I exclaimed, retreating a little from the battery of flashing grey eyes which she had brought to bear upon me.

"You needn't 'madam' me!" cried she, waxing redder. "I'll jest trouble you to settle this little bill!" And she thrust an ominous piece of paper before my eyes, which read, substantially—

Richard Smith, to Julianna Diggins, Dr.

To six months' board,	$95 00
To " washing,	12 00
	$107 00

I returned the bill to her.

"I owe you nothing, madam. I never saw you before in my life!"

"You needn't lie to me!" she cried, setting her arms akimbo. "I hain't kept a genteel boarding house fifteen years for nothing, sir! You'll either fork over on the spot or I'll take the law!"

"Take it," remarked I; "you're welcome to it."

"You think to sarse me, young man; remember what you promise! I'll have you took up for it as sure as my name's Diggin's! I'll learn you better than to deceive a trusting widder woman in that way! You desateful hypocrite!"

"Madam, you insult me! I——"

"Oh, it looks well for such as you to stand on your dignity! Mighty lofty, all at once! You've forgot the cream flipjacks I used to make you, and the kisses you used to give me every evening after the rest of 'em was gone to bed! You've forgot the half dozen shirts I made you, and never charged you a cent! You've forgot that you solemnly promised to marry me last Tuesday morning! You've forgot that, have you?"

"Yes—yes—th-that is—I never!—no!" stammered I, dropping Miss Lillie's arm, in consternation.

"Do you dare to deny it?" cried she in a rage.

"Yes, forever, and a day afterward!" I roared out. "Do you think I would marry an old termagant like you? I'd rather marry my grandmother!"

I saw the fire flash up in her eyes. The widow was waxing dangerous. I dodged the reticule she aimed at my head and fell over backwards as she charged upon me with her half mourning parasol. Miss Lillie turned and fled. I thought discretion the better part of valor, so I leaped over a garden fence near at hand, and was immediately attacked by a large watch dog, that sprung out of a kennel near by. I seized a dahlia pole, and hurling it at the belligerent, made good my escape by fording a duck pond and reaching the next street, from which I hurried home at the best time I could command.

I was resolved that I would not remain in Weston a day longer. Evidently there was in the city some other Richard Smith—for whose notorious self I was mistaken. I penned a hasty note to my employers, giving my reasons for leaving them, packed my trunk, paid my board, and marking my trunk and baggage, "R'd Smith, New Hampton," I took the cars for the locality specified.

In selecting New Hampton as my destination, I had no very definite purpose in view; but in a place of its size I had no doubts of being able to secure some lucrative situation; and the office of boots was better, if I could be left unmolested—than the station of President; if I must lose my identity, and be attacked by viragoes in the streets.

It was near noon of the next day, when the train whirled up to the depot at New Hampton. I alighted, and was hastening down the platform to look after my baggage, when I saw a young lady, in a brown silk walking dress, earnestly regarding me. As she caught my eyes, she threw up her veil and sprang toward me. As the veil swept back, it revealed the loveliest face that I ever looked upon. I had never dreamed of anything half so beautiful. In involuntary admiration I stood still. She threw herself into my arms—her arms fell around my neck—her velvet cheeks touched mine—and such a kiss as she planted full on my lips! My face was in a blaze. I felt as if I had been stowed in honey, with lavender for flavoring.

She repeated the kiss—the munificent little angel!—exclaiming:

"Dear Richard! How delighted I am that you have come at last!"

I was dumb. My mouth was sealed up with the sweetness of her kisses. I dared not speak lest I should dissolve the spell.

"We have been expecting you for four whole days! Only think what a period of suspense!"—went on the soft voice of the lady, as, clasping my hand, she drew me unresistingly to a phæton in waiting. "There; make yourself easy. I'm going to drive.—Isn't it pleasant to be waited on, Richard?"

The arch brown eyes sought mine, as, drawing up the fur lined robes, my companion shook the reins over the white horses, and we were whirled rapidly away.

"Papa is so anxious to see you once more, Richard; but his rheumatism is worse to-day, and he could not drive down. William is absent on an errand for the bride. But I would come! I wanted so much to be the first one to greet you, Richard! Alice is so beautifully happy!—indeed, you ought to be the most grateful man alive."

"I—I—believe I am!" exclaimed I, as, reaching up her sweet face, the little enchantress favored me another kiss, which I this time repaid with compound interest, and then blushed to think of it.

At this moment the phæton stopped at the door of a fine mansion on an aristocratic street, and mechanically, I alighted and lifted out my companion. The hall door was opened. The clasping hand of the young lady drew me within the vestibule—her musical voice called softly at the door of a boudoir: "Alice! Richard has come!"

Instantly the door flew open, and a dark-haired, beautiful woman came forth. She gazed at me an instant with a mingling fervor and shyness, absolutely bewildering. Verily, I was a favored individual.

An elderly gentleman now came forward and saluted me—calling me his dear son, and cutting short everything I intended to say, by his joyful volubility.

The folding doors separating the sitting-room and parlors, were thrown open. I heard the subdued hum of voices, and rustling of heavy silks; and, waiting in the clovered arch of an east window, I saw a clergyman in gown and bands.

The elderly gentleman took the hand of the dark-haired Alice, and placed it in mine.

"Take her," he said, "and may God prosper you! We will have the most important thing first, and dinner afterward. The guests are already impatient."

I glanced at Alice's dress; it was a bridal white; and her beautiful hair was crowned with a wreath of orange blossoms. The sight gave me a tremor. I felt weak and faint. My pallor must have alarmed Alice; for she clutched my arm wildly, and gazed in my face with painful anxiety.

"What is it, Richard? Are you ill? Merciful heaven! Helen, look at him! He is ill!"

"It is nothing—nothing!" I gasped; "only I cannot—cannot marry you!—I——"

"Oh, heaven!" cried Alice, in horrified dismay; and seeing she was about to fall, I clasped my arm around her for support.

At this moment the hall door was opened, and turning at the sound, I saw, with my own eyes, my second self enter the room! My exact counterpart, Richard Smith, No. 2.

His fierce eyes took in the scene at one swooping glance. He rushed to me with a wild ejaculation, and tearing the half-fainting Alice from my arms, he planted his firm grasp on my throat. I put my hand on the same locality of his body.

"What are you doing?" he thundered in my ear.

"What are you doing?" I thundered in response.

"Your life shall pay the forfeit!" he exclaimed with mad vehemence. "The man who has dared to win Alice Hereford's love, shall die!"

"Gentlemen," interrupted the sweet voice of her whom they had called Helen, "be patient; there is some mistake. Which of you is named Richard Smith?"

"I am!" replied I.

"I am!" replied my counterpart.

"But which of you is Richard Smith, the son of Archibald Smith?"

"I am," said my second self.

"And I am not," said I; my father was named Robert."

Helen looked at me a moment, half in doubt, evidently, now to treat me, after what had occurred. Finally, she held out her hand.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Smith; it was all a careless mistake of my own, can you forgive me?"

I thought of the kisses she had given me, and wished the same mistake might be made over again, though I was wise enough not to make that thought known.

"Let me explain," she continued, frankly: "We were expecting my brother Richard home from the South; where he has been some four or five months past; and were quite sure that he would arrive on the train which brought you; he has for some years been engaged to Miss Hereford, and the marriage ceremony was to take place immediately on his arrival. I went down to the depot to welcome him, and because of the striking similitude in your personal appearances, I mistook a stranger for my brother.—That is all. Brother Richard, Mr. Smith is entirely blameless of any wrong. We gave him no time for explanation. Let me present you to each other as friends."

My counterpart shook hands with me, and begged my pardon for dislocating my necktie. I granted it, and begged his pardon for committing a like depradation on his necktie.

And then at a sign from the elderly gentleman, we all walked into the drawing room, where, in a brief space of time, my counterpart was made the husband of his blushing Alice.

The acquaintance so singularly begun with the Smith family, soon ripened into friendship, and became one of the most precious of life's blessings to me.

Helen Smith had kissed me and she could not forget it. If a man can get a woman to think of him—it hardly matters in what way—he has claim on her; and so it was in my case. I believe that I never met Helen but she blushed at the memory which stole over her.

Three months after our first meeting, she kissed me again, and called me "Dear Richard." And this time she was well aware that she was not addressing her brother.

Is it a fortunate or unfortunate thing to have a counterpart? When I think of the genteel boarding house keeper, I say, "No;" but when I look at Helen, and recall the circumstance of our introduction, I am accustomed to answer "Yes."

"As the Twig is Bent the Tree is Inclined."—We often hear mothers wondering why their daughters are so indolent, or careless in their habits. They complain, and scold, and fret over it, but they make no attempt to teach them any better. The fault lies with the mothers themselves; instead of training their girls to habits of industry and neatness, instead of instructing them in household ways, they have allowed them to grow up without any training at all.

Girls are not going to learn these things of their own accord; they must be taught from the time they are old enough to learn, how to be neat and industrious. The teaching of them must be systematic, beginning in their early years; it will not do to train them a month, then leave them three months to do as they please. Education is, after all, the mighty magician that turns everything into gold. Mothers, educate your girls to be neat and industrious, and you will never have to complain that they are not neat and industrious women. Train them carefully in household ways; teach how to make puddings, and cakes and pickles and preserves; show them how to be about a house, how to do every thing in the neatest manner. Teach them both by precept and example; it is worth the trouble; for, instead of having drones and slatterns about you, you will have well-trained and useful helps.—Mrs. Leigh, in The Southerner

☞A poor young man once fell in love with an heiress, and the passion being returned, it only wanted the parents' consent to make them happy. At length, meeting the father, he asked for the daughter's hand. "How much can you command?" asked the millionaire gruffly. "I cannot command much," was the reply. "What are your expectations?" "Well, to tell the truth, I expect to run away with your daughter, and marry her, if you don't give your consent."

☞Boggs has a bottle of schnapps in his office, and being a careless chap, (sometimes neglects to lock it up,) he labeled the bottle "ink." A friend of his "smoked the little game" and in the same style of letter prefixed "DR" during his absence, and as everybody that came in complied with the invitation, Boggs was out of "lush" when he came back.

☞Since the story has been told of Judge Breckinridge marrying a girl whom he saw jump over a rail fence with a pail on her head, the girls in Orange county, New York, are said to spend their time in watching the road; and whenever they see a carriage approaching with a man in it, they seize their pails and go for a fence.

☞A housemaid, the other evening slipped from a chair, on which she was temporarily standing, and fell headforemost into a barrel of flour. To show the effect of mental agony, we will relate that her hair became white in an instant.

There is a post-office in Cass county, Indiana, called Hen Peck. That's a good place for certain husbands to take up their lonely habitation.

Talking.—The best rules to form a young man are, to talk little, to hear much, to reflect alone upon what has passed in company, to distrust one's own opinions, and value others that deserve it.—Sir W. Temple

Good Health.

What an absorbing subject is health! What numbers are in pursuit of it? What multitudes are reckless in regard to it! Of what vast importance is it? What is life worth without it? What earthly possession compares in value to it! Good health! what a bliss to possess it!

Friends meet each other in the street. "Good morning. How are you? How's your health?" Or, "You are looking finely. Your health is good, I see." Another says: "I met our old friend Traddles yesterday. Jolly dog! He looks as healthy as a buck!" Still another: "I see Sweedlepipes is going fast! he is looking quite used up. His health is very poor. He complains bitterly, and says he would give all he's worth if he could only feel well once more. His days are full of misery and his nights are full of pain!"

How people fuss about their health! How they fidget! How they dose themselves! What an array of empty bottles (once full) are upon their shelves and in their closets! Cough Syrups, Bitters, Elixirs, Pectorals, Bourbon, Rye, Sarsaparilla, Medical Discovery, Plantation, Hostetter, Schnapps, Sonoma, and a thousand and one others. "Take me and I'll do you good."

How wretched is the feeling—neither sick nor well. Nothing in particular, and yet everything in general.—How I pity such!

Many devour medical works (illustrated), published for general circulation. "Every man his own doctor." What nonsense! Just as well every man his own cobbler, minister, butcher, tailor, anything and everything; including milk and ice man, coal, switch and swill-man. "Oh! what a pain that was!" cries out a morbid sufferer. To his book he flies—studies the symptoms of his case—expects death before morning—and wonders, when he awakes, that he is still alive. He dreamed that he had crossed the river Styx, and supposed himself a dweller in the land of spirits. He looks about his room before he rises from the bed. His eyes wander from floor to ceiling. Again his gaze rests upon his books and bottle. He knows not where he is. With a groan he plants his feet upon the floor, totters to his glass, and runs out his tongue.

Throw away your nostrums, and give your money to some poor family sadly in need, perhaps of bread. Such an act will be sensible, and a very safe "remedy" to take. Try it. It promotes healthful and quiet rest and sleep.

Many persons are low in health and spirits, and they conclude they are never to feel well again. "I shall never be myself again! never—no, never!" O yes, you will. Remember, for your encouragement, that the natural tendency of the body is to health, just as it is the nature of a seed to grow when planted in the ground, or a tree to strike its roots deep into the earth and flourish, causing the sap to flow, reaching every fibre. Don't despond, thus wasting the sap of life.

Laughter is good physic. If you cannot laugh "right out," why, then, smile. By degrees you may be able to smile aloud. You will soon feel better, depend upon it. I am not an M. D. That honor is not mine. I respect the profession. They are a noble class of men. Still, I have the impression that sick people can help themselves as much and more than doctors and their physics. Help yourself, man! All this is "Advice Gratis."

Do some little thing. If you cannot remove a mountain, lift a pebble.

I have suffered much in my day. I know what suffering is. I am now in perfect health.

This is my prescription, viz.:

Be careful (but not overmuch); live regular; sleep as much as possible; keep quiet; avoid injurious excitement; cultivate kind feelings; be moderate in all things; avoid unnecessary business cares; be content with little; think how well off you are, after all. "Know thyself." The meaning of this last expression is, avoid everything which consciously affects your health.

To the reader in health I would say: Be thankful for this inestimable boon bestowed upon you by the great Benefactor, and hold it fast.

To the sick I would say, cheer up!

Don't Mind the Patch.—Don't be ashamed, my lad, if you have a patch on your elbow. It speaks well of your industrious mother. For our part, we would rather see a dozen patches on your jacket, than to hear one profane or vulgar word escape your lips. No good boys will shun you because you cannot dress as well as your companions; and if bad boys sometimes laugh at your appearance, say nothing, my lad, but walk on. We know many a rich man who was once as poor as you. There is our next door neighbor in particular—now one of our wealthiest men—he told us, a short time since, that when a child he was glad to receive the cold potatoes from his neighbor's table. Be good, my boy, and if you are poor you will be respected a great deal more than if you were the son of a rich man, and were addicted to bad habits.—Olive Branch.

Honesty and Justice.—He is only worthy of esteem that knows what is just and honest and dares do it—that is master of his own passions, and scorns to be a slave of another's. Such a one, in the lowest poverty, is a far better man, and merits more respect, than those gay things who owe all their greatness and reputation to their rentals and revenues.—Dr. Fuller.

Charity.—Nothing can atone for the want of Modesty and innocence; without which beauty is ungraceful and wit detestable.—Spectator.

THE Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution has already been introduced into Congress. We now have universal male suffrage, and if we don't have universal female suffrage then it is not in the natural Adamite order of things—that's all.

THANKS to the veto of Governor Geary, the Railroad Bond Transfer Bill, authorizing the exchange of $7,500,000 Pennsylvania Railroad and other gold bearing bonds held by the State, for the purpose of aiding wild cat railroad speculations in the northern part of the State, has been squelched.

DURING the discussion in the Senate, recently, about the defences of the Capitol during the rebellion, Senator Wilson said the first blood shed in the war was spilt upon the marble floor of the Capitol, and came from a wound received by a black man, named Nicholas Biddle.

Honorably Discharged Soldiers exempt From Taxation on Incomes.

We have heard frequent complaints of assessors of United States revenue levying an income tax on honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, who served in the United States army and navy during the late war, while there is a resolution of Congress exempting all such from this taxation. The resolution was approved July 28, 1866, and and is in the following words:

Whereas by the joint Resolution (No. 77) of Congress, approved July fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, a special income tax of five per cent, on all incomes exceeding six hundred dollars was directed to be assessed and collected and was enforced generally upon all citizens accessible to the revenue officers, but was not enforced against all our soldiers then in the field in the active service of the country; and whereas since the surrender of the insurrectionary armies, and the disbanding and return of the federal soldiers to their homes, said tax is being with manifest hardship assessed and collected of them in many parts of the country: Therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That said special tax, so imposed, shall not be further enforced against officers or soldiers lately in the service of the United States, and who have been honorably discharged therefrom, and that the Secretary of the Treasury direct the proper observance of this resolution by all revenue officers.

The law which increased the exemption from $600 to $1,000, does not repeal the terms of the joint resolution of 1866 entirely relieving honorably discharged soldiers and sailors from paying tax on incomes. This is plain and unmistakable.

We have heard of hundreds of men honorably discharged from the military and naval services of the government, who have been paying this tax on incomes. Hereafter all such may safely refuse to pay this tax, as they are clearly and legally exempt there from.—Topic.

☞ Under a law of Congress and the Regulations of the Pension Office, the time during which declarations for pensions may be filed by ex-soldiers who served in the late war, or their heirs, expires by limitation in June next, and after that time no cases will be received without special act of Congress in each case. The act of June 6, 1866, prescribed that all such declarations should be filed within five years of the passage thereof, the framer of the act believing that this was sufficient time for the filling of all bona fide cases. The time should be extended.

☞ Says the Philadelphia Ledger of the 2d inst., the several railroad and canal companies in this city paid their coupons maturing April 1st, as announced in that paper Friday, except the Morris Canal, which "went back" on its promise and paid in currency, to the great chagrin of its creditors; but to make up for this failure, the Huntingdon and Broad-Top Railroad paid the coupons on its first mortgage Bonds in coin.

☞ At an evening session of the House of Representatives recently, a resolution of thanks to ex Gov. Curtin was unanimously passed, assuring him of the high regard and esteem in which he is held by his fellow-citizens, on account of his noble and self sacrificing spirit, and his fidelity. Mr. Curtin is now Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States at St. Petersburg, and the resolution has been forwarded to him.

THE grand total of the public domain of the United States is 1,815,245,672 acres, or 2,837,882 square miles. Of this immense estate about 500,000,000 acres have been surveyed, and over 400,000,000 disposed of to purchasers, for military services, agricultural colleges, schools and universities, as swamp lands, for Indians, etc. The Pacific Railroad and other grants have recently swallowed up 10,000,000 acres of land.

☞ The Land Department of the Union Pacific, on March 31, sold four thousand acres of land in Nebraska, west of Columbus, for a sum total of $14,260. The sale of these railway lands is rapidly increasing, and the Platte Valley will soon be thickly settled with industrious husbandmen.

The Legislature has adjourned and the members and Senators, it is supposed, have returned to their homes. Gov. Geary crushed several of their "ring" measures by putting his big foot upon them. It is said the Governor is very unpopular with the outside speculators.

☞ The first colored votes under the Fifteenth Amendment were cast in the election for a new charter at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, Thursday, the 31st ult., the day after the proclamation of the amendment. Two colored men voted at Wilmington, Delaware, on Saturday. Colored men voted in the election of school officers.

☞ A resolution was offered in the Senate on Tuesday, by Mr. Cameron, directing the Military Committee to suggest some testimonial in honor of the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Volunteers who were the first to respond to the War proclamation. After some discussion the whole matter was referred to that Committee.

It appears from an official document sent to the U. S. Senate, that our navy contains 11 sea-going monitors, costing $14,184,000; and 40 harbor and river monitors, including 3 Western ironclads, costing $21,178,000. Total cost of iron-clads, $35,371,000.

Appropriation Bill.

The General Appropriation Bill, as agreed upon by a Committee of Conference of the two Houses of the Legislature, embraces the following items:

Allowing the State Librarian, $1,200.

Giving the Superintendent of Public Printing $500 salary.

Making the salary of the Chief Clerk of the Secretary of the Commonwealth $1,800.

The salary of the keeper of the arsenal is fixed at $1,200.

$100,000 are appropriated for pensions and gratuities.

The conference committee fixes the amount for the support of common schools at $500,000, instead of $750,000, as passed by the House.

The salary of the Judges of the Supreme Court is fixed at $6,000 each.

The salary of the President Judge of Dauphin county is fixed by the committee at $4,500.

$130,000 are appropriated for the payment of the salaries of the president and associate law judges of the Commonwealth, excepting Allegheny county, Philadelphia, and the twelfth judicial district.

$1,750,000 are appropriated for the payment of the interest on the public debt.

$50,000 is the amount set apart for public printing, folding, stitching and binding.

For the deaf mutes, $36,000 are appropriated.

$275 are appropriated to each of the blind in the Pennsylvania Institution.

$23,000 was also appropriated for the feeble minded children at Media.

The Home for the Friendless at Harrisburg receives $2,000.

The appropriation for the Home for the Little Wanderers, located at Philadelphia, was stricken out.

The salary of the chief clerk in the State Historian's office is fixed at $1,400.

The apropropriation for a new board walk, and for repair of gravel walks in capitol grounds, was stricken out.

The State appropriates for the improvement of the Susquehanna river, above the line of Clinton county, $3,000.

The soldiers' orphans are provided for by an appropriation of $130,000 for each quarter.

ODDFELLOW'S THANKSGIVING.—We publish below the proclamation of General Thanksgiving, issued by the Grand Sire of the Grand Lodge of the United States, I. O. O. F.:

OFFICE M. W. GRAND SIRE, R. W. G. L. U. S.—"Whereas, The anniversary of our well beloved order is rapidly approaching, and the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the United States, in grateful recognition of the hand of God in the preservation and prosperity of the institution during a long period of years, and amid many trials and dangers, did set apart the said anniversary as a day of General Thanksgiving throughout the entire jurisdiction; now, therefore, I, E. D Farnsworth, M. W. Grand Sire, in virtue of authority in me vested by law, do hereby fraternally enjoin all the Grand Bodies of the several State, District, Territorial or Provincial Jurisdiction, and upon all Bodies Subordinate immediately to the Grand Lodge of the United States, to take proper order without delay, for the general observance of the twenty-sixth day of April, as a day of solemn Thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God, for his unmistakable care and protection of that noble institution, which we so earnestly love, for the prosperous past life, of which we would devoutly show forth thanks, and for whose usefulness among the children of men, in all future, under His guidance, we would humbly implore His continued blessing."

Done at the city of Baltimore, this 15th day of March, A. D. 1870, and of our Order the 51st.

Letter from Kansas.

MANHATTAN, KANSAS, March 29, 1870.

DEAR EDITOR:—For the benefit of some of the many readers of your paper, I will give them a short description of the city and surroundings. I would state that Manhattan is a town of about 2,000 inhabitants, on the Kansas Pacific Railroad, 118 miles west of Leavenworth and Kansas City, at the junction of the Big Blue and Kansas rivers. It is located on a gently inclined plain, about thirty feet above low water mark, and is surrounded by high bluffs, which give the town a very picturesque appearance. A scene of greater loveliness than the landscape to be viewed from the top of Blue Mont (a bluff overlooking the town,) especially in the months of May and June, when the bluffs are covered with flowers, is difficult to imagine.—Looking to the east the Kansas river can be traced by the belt of timber lining its banks for a distance of 12 or 15 miles. To the north the Blue is seen pursuing a zigzag course for an equal distance. Looking westward past the State Agricultural College and the beautiful rolling prairie surrounding it, and the Wild Cat creek beyond, heavily timbered, can be seen for a long distance, coming in from the southwest and south, the Kansas winds its way, traversing the valley from bluff to bluff, touching first on one side and then on the other. The winding course of the Kansas may be understood when we state that it is twenty-five miles from Manhattan, via the river, to a point only four miles distant in a direct course.

The buildings in town and surrounding country are of a very substantial character, being mostly constructed of the beautiful white magnesian limestone, with which the bluffs in the vicinity abound. As a business point Manhattan has no equal in the State. The people in the Blue and Republican vallies receive their supplies of merchandise mostly from our dealers, and when the Republican valley Railroad, in which our people are taking a lively interest, shall have joined us more effectually with the Republican valley and the northwest, it must give this place a wholesale trade of considerable importance. As a grain market Manhattan has so far taken the lead of all points on the line of the Kansas Pacific Railroad. From the 1st of January, 1870, to the 5th of February, there have been shipped from this point 112 car loads of corn, about 40,000 bushels. During the same time there have been fed by Mr Kearns, Mr. Gove, Major Adams and other cattle feeders, nearly or quite as much more. It is safe to say that at least 50,000 bushels of corn per month find a ready sale in this market. This, with the amount fed by farmers to their own stock, must make the whole amount of corn grown in this county not less than 1,500,000 bushels. It is estimated by those best qualified to judge, that at least 33⅓ per cent more will be raised this year than last. We think this estimate not too high, as the firm of Adams & Elliott alone located over 200 farmers in this vicinity during 1869. This estimated would make for 1870, 2,000,000 bushels of corn alone. In respect to quality and productiveness of soil, if the half were told, many people in the east would look incredulous and call it an exaggeration, and when assured that the soil was from two to ten feet deep, and produced, per acre, from 50 to 140 bushels of corn, from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat, and from 40 to 100 bushels of oats, they would laugh at us, and yet any Kansas man can truthfully tell of just such soil, with crops as indicated We have only to say that our soil is equal to any, and our climate as healthy as that of the most favored localities either east or west. Although we have workmen and tradesmen of every description, there is still ample room for all who wish to come and take up their abode with us.

Clearfield and Buffalo Railroad.

It is a well defined fact, that public improvements develope the resources of the country through which they traverse, and hence the announcement of the passage of a bill for a railroad from Clearfield to Buffalo, was a matter of gratification and rejoicing to the citizens of this county generally. This road will pass through a great extent of country which at present is still a wilderness, but abounding in white pine and other timber; coal, iron, ore fire clay, and other minerals. This road is but a link in the great air-line between the lakes and our National capital, portions of which are already completed at either end and along intermediate distances. That part of the road to which we have particular reference, extends from Clearfield to Smethport, in McKean county, and when built will reach or intersect a continuous line from Mt. Union to Buffalo—leaving but two other links, one from Mt. Union to Chambersburg, and the other from Hagerstown to Point of Rocks, to make a complete line of road between the two objective points named; i. e., between Buffalo and Washington city. When once built, this will constitute one of the most important thoroughfares in the country, and command an immense trade and travel. In view of these facts, and the certain development of the untold and now dormant wealth of this region of country, it should stimulate the citizens of this county to renewed activity in furthering the building of this, to us, most vital improvement.—Raftman's Journal.

A WOMAN IN A CATALEPTIC SLEEP—The citizens of Bergen, N. Y., have for some time been quite agitated over a most singular case of a woman who has for a long time remained in trance or state of cataleptsy. The particulars are substantially as follows, as we learn them from the physician in attendance:

It seems that Miss Eliza Randall, being nearly thirty-five years old about two years ago complained of indisposition. Dr. J. W. Craig, of Churchville, was called, and treated the lady for nervous debility for four or five months, at which period she fell into a sleep that lasted nearly 3 weeks, not rousing in the meantime. Subsequently she revived for five or six days, when about a year ago she fell into a sort of cataleptic sleep and has remained so until about two weeks since although at remote periods she seemed conscious enough to swallow slight nourishment when given Two weeks ago she roused up considerably, but only complained of a severe headache, although her lengthened lying in one position on the bed had caused severe hip sores, which to ordinary people would be very painful. She had again relapsed into the same unconscious state which seemed to baffle all professional skill, but what the upshot of the case will be, whether she will ultimately recover, or finally sink under this prolonged suspension, is a point of conjecture among the faculty. We understand, she has been visited by a great number of people who are drawn thither through motives of curiosity to behold this singular mortal.

HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The patient is puzzled and confounded some time by this and yet thereafter hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of existence, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individual persists in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the lack. Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their superiorities with every sitting man or woman in the land is a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is deranged depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEA-WEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures the formidable disease SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of these organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevents the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEA-WEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the locality say what it may, this is the only way cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. How how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them they create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies and surely prescribed do more than this good. They expel the accumulations of the stomach, impede heating digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

These facts, after all, nothing but facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's rebes. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but can the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Creating the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated; the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the same manner a condition of the system all diseases must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $3.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1 50 per bottle, or $7 50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. Ap. 12-1y.

Badly sold. A young man in this place last week sent a young lady a live kitten wrapped up in a paper, as a joke, which he didn't want anybody but the lady to know anything about. But, alas for human hopes, the joke was discovered and the young man is now saluted with the cry of "How's the kitten?"

Everybody, no doubt, has seen Wanamaker's clothing advertisement in the papers. There is a little secret worth knowing attached thereto, which we cannot keep. It is this: By those advertisements he has made half a million dollars within the past three years. Tell us, does it pay to advertise?

Cleaning House.

Clean your bedsteads thoroughly in March or April, with salt and water; dust them with Persian powder [genuine] or apply corrosive sublimate with a feather to every crack and crevice, and you will not be haunted by vermin. In cleaning closets, first remove everything from them, and hang the clothing out to air. Sweep, dust and scrub them well; fill up holes, if there are any, with a mixture of chloride of lime and putty; dust Persian powder upon all the ledges and into the interstices, and you will be free of roaches, moths and bugs for the summer.

In cleaning rooms, the same rule applies. Clean well, fill up holes and crevices, dust powder round the ledges, and moths and mice will disappear or take refuge in the cellar, whence a good cat or some chloride of lime (used dry) will soon dislodge them. There is no need for any house to be troubled at all with vermin. The proper means and a little care at the right time will prevent infinite annoyances afterward, and much destruction of property.

Remember, soap should never be used upon grained wood; cold tea leaves clean it the best of anything.

Never iron lace window-curtains, and be careful not to make them blue with indigo. Stretch them upon a mattress dry, pinning down carefully the extreme edge of every point or scollop.

In starching clothes, mix raw starch with water and pour boiling water upon it, but do not boil the starch.—It will take about half the usual quantity. Stir it round with a little end of spermaceta candle so as to make it iron glossy.—Democrat.

GOOD NEWS, IF TRUE.—We have heard that it is the intention of a certain Iron Company to start a Rolling Mill in this borough, if they receive the proper encouragement and aid from our citizens. We suppose this implies if they get the land on moderate terms, and if one or more of our capitalists subscribe stock to a sufficient amount. These two ifs should be no obstacle in the way of the erection of a Rolling Mill, as we don't think any of our land-owners will be so exorbitant in demand, for the experience of others has taught a lesson that it don't pay in the end; and as for the subscription to stock, we don't think any of our men of means will refuse to give what they can to bring to our midst one of the best paying interests in the country. Gentlemen, show your enterprise, and don't let Huntingdon be in the background any longer.

CARD.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6, 1870

To the "Boys" of Co. C, 125th P. V.

COMRADES: John Hoffman, who was drowned at Huntingdon, on Saturday last, was a member of Company C, but being on detached duty during nearly his entire term of service, he was a stranger to many of you. He leaves a wife and three children in destitute circumstances.

Let every man of us send one dollar or five, or ten, (according to our ability.) to Geo. W. Garretson, Huntingdon, for the benefit of the afflicted family of this departed comrade, and the deed will be acceptable to the "Friend of the widow and the Fatherless." Yours fraternally,

WM. W. WALLACE.

ONCE AGAIN.—We are once again called upon to announce the fact that the big store of Henry & Co., is on time for the spring rush of trade.—There is no lack of goods upon their shelves, and no drain of well filled boxes and barrels in the cellar. Now, don't think, dear reader, that they never sell anything out of these barrels and boxes; but we mean that they always keep a full supply of every thing that you want, in large or small quantities and are continually on alert filling up the shelves and cellar with fresh goods, and plenty of them. The members of the firm are all good fellows, and the public will lose nothing by giving them a liberal share of custom. It.

APRIL.—Josh Billings in his Allminax thus describes the mouth of April:

"April, dear April, chuck full of charms,
Cum, cum, oh, cum to my arms."

Thus warbled the poet, more than ten thousand yeers ago, and he knew his bizz, he had the right thing in him, he wasnt none of yure pedigree poets, nor dispepshee poets, nor whiskee poets. Dandylions planted this month are always sure tew head out, so are toad stools, so is head cheese. This month is also healthy for planting onions; onions are a luxury, and are good for a bad breth, or are bad for a good breth, I hav forgot which, but either way is right."

SEARCHING FOR THE BODIES.—On Sunday morning last a number of our citizens went down the river in skiffs, dredging for the bodies of John Hoffman and David Westbrook, who were drowned on the 2d inst. They searched the river and piles of drift for some distance down, but no traces of them could be seen. The water is low and clear, and it is thought the bodies will rise to the surface in a few days, when they will be recovered.

TRY HIM.—Our citizens and the public generally, should bear in mind that we have a Steam Bakery and Candy Manufactory in this place, of which Mr. Luke Reilly is proprietor. He will furnish all sorts of Bread, Cakes, Pies, etc., on short notice, and on reasonable terms. He also manufactures all kinds of Syrups, which are delicious.

ALMOST DROWNED.—On Saturday last, a little son of Mr. John Hoffman, who was drowned on the 2d inst., was on the bank of the canal engaged in fishing, when by some mishap, he fell into the water, and had it not been for some boys near who came to his rescue, he would have met the same fate as his father.

RELATING TO LOANS.—The following law, intended to stimulate investments, energies, skill and industry in almost all branches of trade and manufactures, by exempting capital from liabilities which heretofore acted as a restraint on investments, has been signed by the Governor:

That from and after the passage of this act it shall be lawful for any person or persons to loan money to any individual, firm, association or corporation doing business in this Commonwealth, upon agreement to receive a share of the profits of such business as compensation for the money so loaned in lieu of interest; and such agreement or the reception of profits under such agreement shall not render the person or persons making such loans liable as a co-partner in such business to other creditors of such individual, firm, association or corporation except as to the money so loaned; provided that such agreement for loan shall be in writing, and that this act shall not apply to any loan made by a member of any such firm, association or corporation, or to any one who holds himself out as such, and shall not be construed to repeal or affect any portion of the law relating to special partnership; provided, however that any person so loaning money under this act shall not hold himself out as a general partner, so as to induce credit to be given to any parties, association or corporation to whom the said loan shall be made.

PARTING WITH DEAD-HEADS.—The Albany Express had a supply of non-paying "Patrons." It bids them good bye in the following tender terms:—"This week, we strike from our list about fifty names who will not pay their dues to the printer. In doing so we take them by the hand, and, with tears in our eyes, bid them an affectionate farewell! Good-bye, old subs! Take care of yourselves. Sometimes think of the Express, which you have had so long for nothing. Sponge upon other printers, now, a while. A change of diet will, doubtless, be good for you. Poor old fellows! We are a little sorry to turn you out upon the dark night, without a lamp, but it must be so. Strike for the nearest neighbor's light. He may let you in and feed you for a year or two, upon the strength of your honorable promises to pay at the end of that time.—For ourselves, we have enough of these curious pledges to supply our cabinet for the present. We have labeled them carefully, and they are open to general inspection. With many thanks for your self sacrificing indulgence to us, and your honest appreciation of the obligations existing toward our office, we again and finally say, 'farewell, forever.'"

A VICIOUS CAT.—A cat nearly caused the death of a child in the vicinity of Sandy Hill, this county, a few days ago. Our informant states that Mrs. Jeremiah Hull left her child, aged 9 months, in the room playing with the cat while she was engaged in another part of the house. After some time she went to see about the child, when she saw the cat sitting on its breast, with its nose inserted in the child's mouth and its paws clasped around its neck. Mrs Hull ran and threw the cat from the child, which was almost lifeless, but the cat immediately sprang back on the child, placing its nose in the child's mouth and clasping it around the neck as before. A second time the animal was thrown back, and then greatly enraged at again sprang forward and cut at the child by the throat. After releasing the child, the cat was taken out and immediately killed. The child recovered in a few days. But for the timely return of the mother to see the child, would have been placed beyond the hope of recovery.—Perry County Advocats.

CHILD BURNED.—The Philipsburg Journal of March 24th says: "An infant daughter of M. O. Fallan, about three months old, was frightfully burned one day last week, by falling from a cradle, which was being rocked by a brother—a small child—and striking against a stove. The mother was absent for a pail of water, and upon her return was horror stricken to find the baby lying with one side of its face, shoulder and one little arm pressed against the stove, and, as it were, literally cooking. Notwithstanding the severity of the burns the child is in a fair way to recover."

FIXING UP.—A new broom, they say, always sweeps clean, and it is equally true, as all customers know, that a new firm will do their best to invite, encourage, and maintain patronage. We see that S. B. Chaney & Co., successors to Cunningham & Carmon, are fitting up their large store room on Railroad street, and intend keeping endless styles of Dry Goods, etc., and a large assortment of Groceries, etc. Everybody knows that Mr. Chaney will do the fair thing, and we commend the new firm to the liberal patronage of our citizens.

LECTURE.—A Lecture will be delivered in the Catholic Church, at Huntingdon, on Thursday evening, April 21st, at 7½ o'clock, by Rev. P. J. Aylward. Subject: "The Church and the Bible." Proceeds for the benefit of the Church. Tickets 25 cents. All are respectfully invited to attend.

HOUSE BURNED.—Mr. William Morrigstar's house in Henderson township, this county, was burned to the ground, together with all its contents, one day last week. The family were out of the house at the time, and it is supposed the fire was communicated from the fire place.

COMING HOME.—Rev. Jno. D. Brown, who has been for several years past engaged as a missionary in India, is now in Philadelphia, and is expected here this week. Welcome home.

The Woodworth Sisters, a renowned corps of sweet and charming singers, will give a concert in Venter's Hall this Tuesday evening. Their father was a soldier, and falling into the hands of the rebels, died at Richmond, Va. This fact, added to the prospect of a good entertainment, should elicit the patronage of our citizens.

"PARIS BY SUNLIGHT AND GASLIGHT."—A work descriptive of the Mysteries and Miseries, the Virtues, Vices, Splendors, and Crimes of the City of Paris.—By James D. McCabe, Jr. National Publishing Co., Philadelphia.

The usual facilities possessed by our first-class Subscription Book Publishers have enabled them to furnish the public with many works of great interest and value; but the most powerful and attractive work of this kind is the book now before us. It is simply the City of Paris photographed by the author's pen and the artist's pencil. It is magnificently illustrated, and is issued in the very best style. It not only abounds in solid and useful information, but faithfully reproduces the most startling sensations of the gayest City in the world. It tells how the beauty and splendor of the bright city have been purchased at a frightful cost of misery and suffering; how virtue and vice go arm-in-arm, and how the latter is undermining all the sweet courtesies of social life; and how most fearful crimes are committed and concealed. It tells us of high life and low life; of palaces and hovels; of the Emperor's family, and the workman's household. We mingle freely in the most magnificent and dissipated pleasures, and drop an involuntary tear into the "Common ditches" where the poor sewing girl is laid to rest. All that has made Paris the most beautiful and attractive as well as the gayest and wickedest city in the world, unite to make this book the most interesting we have seen for many a day. The author writing of what he has seen and experienced, has evidently sought to make his volume not only the most powerful and fascinating sensational work of the day, but also a book which shall hold a place in every man's library as an authority upon the subjects whereof it treats. The book is magnificently illustrated with 150 engravings, by the leading artists of France:—Doro, Therond, and others whose names amply attest the character of the work. It is comprised in one large volume of over 800 pages, and sold only by subscription.

AN exchange truly says: "Thousands of young men are drifting helplessly about on the ocean of life, vainly hoping that ere long some favorable breeze will spring up and drive their vessels into some safe harbor.—Where that safe harbor is they have no idea; because they have no definite object in view. They have never decided upon any course of life, but permit their actions to be shaped and moulded by the circumstances of the hour. Is it any wonder that disasters follow each other in quick succession? More men are ruined through indecision than from wrong decision. Few men will deliberately lay out and pursue a plan of life that will ultimately work their ruin. Most young men of the present day enter the great battle of life without any well defined system of warfare, and consequently spend their best days in aimless pursuits. Indecision is the bane of existence. Could we look into the world of spirits we would find but few souls in the dark regions of woe that had resolved to reach that goal; nearly all who are there, and those who are hastening there, are in their present condition simply because they never decided whether they would go, and their indecision has been their ruin.

ROSADALIS

THE Great American Health Restorer; purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year; which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreeboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Reed and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

X.

DRAINING—MY OWN.

My farm is in the township of Newcastle, Westchester county, New York, 35 miles from our City Hall, and a little eastward of the hamlet known as Chappaqua, called into existence by a station on the Harlem Railroad. It embraces the south-easterly half of the marsh which the railroad here traverses from south to north—my part measuring some fifteen acres, with five acres more of slightly elevated dry land between it and the foot of the rather rugged hill which rises thence on the east and on the south, and of which I now own some fifty acres lying wholly eastward of my low land, and in good part covered with forests. Of this, I bought more than half in 1853, and the residue in bits from time to time as I could afford it. The average cost was between $130 and $140 per acre; one small and poor old cottage being the only building I found on the tract, which consisted of the ragged edges of two adjacent farms between the western portions of which mine is now interposed, while they still adjoin each other beyond the north and south road half a mile from the railroad on which their buildings are located and which forms my eastern boundary. My stony, gravelly upland mainly slopes to the west; but two acres on my east line incline toward the road which bounds me in that direction, while two more on my south east corner descend to the little brook which, entering at that corner, keeps irregularly near my south line, until it emerges, swelled by a smaller runnel that enters my lowland from the north and traverses it to meet and pass off with the larger brooklet aforesaid. I have done some draining, to no great purpose, on the more level portions of my upland, but my lowland has challenged my best efforts in this line, and I shall here explain them for the encouragement and possible guidance of novices in draining. Let me speak first of

My Difficulties.—This marsh or bog consisted, when I first grappled with it, of some thirty acres, whereof I then owned less than a third. To drain it to advantage, one person should own it all or the different owners should co-operate; but I had to go it alone, with no other aid than a freely accorded privilege of straightening as well as deepening the brook which wound its way through the dryer meadow just below me, forming here the boundary of two adjacent farms. I spent one hundred dollars on this job, which is still imperfect; but the first decided fall in the stream occurs nearly a mile below me; and you tire easily of doing at your own cost work which benefits several others as much as yourself.—My drainage will never be perfect till this brook, with that far larger one in which it is merged sixty rods below me, shall have been sunk three or four feet at a further expense of at least five hundred dollars.

This bog or marsh, when I first bought it, was mainly dedicated to the uses of frogs, muskrats and snapping-turtles. A few small water elms and soft maples grow upon it, with swamp alder partly fringing the western base of the hill east of it, where the rocks which had, through thousands of years, rolled from the hill, thickly covered the surface, with springs bubbling up around and among them. Decaying stumps and imbedded fragments of trees argued that timber formerly covered this marsh as well as the encircling hills. A tall, dense growth of blackberry briars, thoroughwort, and all manner of swamp weeds and grasses, covered the center of the swamp each Summer; but my original portion of it, being too wet for these, was mainly addicted to hassocks or tussocks of wiry, worthless grass: their matted roots rising in hard bunches a few inches above the soft, bare, encircling mud. The bog ranged in depth from a few inches to five or six feet, and was composed of black, peaty, vegetable mold, diversified by occasional streaks of clay or sand, all resting on a substratum of hard, coarse gravel, out of which two or three springs bubbled up, in addition to the half a dozen which poured in from the east, and a tiny rivulet which (except in a very dry, hot time) added the attribute of three or four more which sprung from the base of a higher shelf of the hill near the middle of what is now my farm. Add to these that the brook which brawled and foamed down my hill-side near my south line as aforesaid, had brought along an immensity of pebbles and gravel of which it had mainly formed my five acres of drier lowland, had thus built up a petty swale, whereon it had the bad habit of filling up one channel, and then cutting another, more devious and eccentric, if possible than any of its predecessors—and you have some idea of the obstacles I encountered and resolved to overcome. One of my first substantial improvements was the cutting of a straight channel for this current and, by walling it with large stones, compelling the brook to respect necessary limitations. It was not my fault that some of those stones were set nearly upright, so as to veneer the brook rather than thoroughly constrain it; hence some of the stones, undermined by strong currents, were pitched forward into the brooks by high Spring freshets, so as to require resetting more carefully. This was a mistake, but not one of My Blunders.—These, the natural result of inexperience and haste, were very grave. Not only had I had no real experience in draining when I began, but I could hire no foreman who knew much more of it than I did. I should have begun by securing an ample and sure fall where the water left my land, and next cut down the brooklet or open ditches into which I intended to drain to the lowest practicable point—so low, at least that no drain running into it should ever be troubled with back water. Nothing can be more useless than a drain in which water stagnates, choking it with mud. Then I should have bought hundreds of Hemlock or other cheap boards, slit them to a width of four or five inches, and, having opened the needed drains, laid these in the bottom and the tile thereupon, taking care to break joint by covering the meeting ends of two boards with the middle of a tile.

Laying the tile in the soft mud of a bog, with nothing beneath to prevent their sinking, is simply throwing away labor and money. I cannot wonder that tile draining seems to many a humbug, seeing that so many tile are lain so that they never do any good.

Having, by successive purchases, become owner of fully half of this swamp, and by repeated blunders discovered that making stone drains in a bog, while it is a capital mode of getting rid of the stone, is no way at all to make drains, I closed my series of experiments two years since by carefully relaying my generally useless tile on good strips of board, sinking them just as deep as I could persuade the water to run off freely, and instead of allowing them to discharge into a brooklet or open ditch, connecting each with a covered main of four to six inch tile; these mains discharging into the running brook which drains all my farm and three or four of those above it just where it runs swiftly off from my land. If a thaw or heavy rain swells the brook (as it sometimes will) so that it rises above our outlet aforesaid, the strong current formed by the concentration of the clear contents of so many drains will not allow the muddy water of the brook to back into it so many as three feet at most; and any mud or sediment that may be deposited there will be swept out clean whenever the brook shall have fallen to the drainage level. For this and similar excellent devices, I am indebted to capital engineering and thorough execution of Messrs. Chickering & Gall, whose work on my place has seldom required mending, and never called for reconstruction.

My Success.—I judge that there are not many tracts more difficult to drain than mine was, considering all the circumstances, except those that are frequently flowed by tides or the waters of some lake or river. Had I owned the entire swamp, or had there been a fall in the brook just below me, had I had any prior experience in draining, or had others equally interested co-operated in the good work, my task would have been comparatively light. As it was, I made mistakes which increased the cost and postponed the success of my efforts; but this is at length complete. I had seven acres of Indian Corn, one of corn Fodder, two of Oats, and seven or eight acres of grass on my lowland in 1869; and though the Spring months were quite rainy, and the latter part of Summer rather dry, my crops were all good. I did not do better in Westchester County; and I shall be quite content with as good hereafter. Of my seven hundred bus. of corn (ears) I judge that two-thirds would be accounted fit for seed anywhere; my grass was cut twice, and yielded one large crop and another heavier than the average first crop throughout our State. My drainage will require some care henceforth, but the fifteen acres I have reclaimed from utter uselessness and obstruction are decidedly the best part of my farm.

SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR,

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from any thing of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances. This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headache.

McGUIRE'S

WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath, should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All these preparations are put up in the most elegant and economical manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and more complete without them.

Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States and Canadas. Address orders to

GET THE BEST

READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture

GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens, and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peal off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.
